

This data was supplied by J.C. Hausler and is mostly from a copy of selected pages from "List of Officers, Agents, Stations, Equipment, Facilities, Etc." No. 4., superseding No. 3, dated Sept. 1, 1905. This copy was graciously provided to him by Herbert V. Trice.

The L implies only "local" tickets are sold at that location, not "interline" tickets. You will note that there is at least one location which has an I which implies only "interline" tickets are available at that location (which doesn't make a lot of sense).

The letters D or N in the third column refer to "day" or "night". The N implies that there was a telegraph operator on duty at that station 24/7, whereas the D denotes only day trick operation. Of course there were originally only two 12 hour tricks, usually something like 7AM to 7PM and 7PM to 7AM, although that differed between railroads. Furthermore, "day trick only" sometimes required the operator (who was frequently the station agent as well) to stay until the last passenger train was processed at the station and/or the dispatcher had given a "good night" (GN signal) allowing the operator to go home. A station had N service if it was either a busy commercial point or a 24/7 train order office, as night trick telegraphers tended mostly to handle train orders.
